When Are Full Refunds Available?

Passengers are more likely to receive full refunds for cancelled flights in these situations:

- The airline cancels the flight and the passenger declines rebooking
- A major schedule change makes the itinerary unsuitable
- Passenger-rights regulations require a refund due to disruption

In these cases, the airline may refund the unused ticket value and applicable taxes.

Qatar Airways Ticket Types and Refund Options

Refundable Tickets

Refundable fares provide the highest flexibility.

If a flight is cancelled and the passenger decides not to travel, they may qualify for a full refund of the ticket value depending on fare conditions.

Semi-Flexible Tickets

These tickets allow refunds but may include penalties or deductions.

Passengers usually receive partial refunds after applicable fees.

Non-Refundable Tickets

Most discounted tickets fall under this category.

Normally the base ticket value is not refundable, but when the airline cancels the flight, passengers may still be offered refund or rebooking options depending on the situation.

What Happens If You Accept a Rebooked Flight?

When Qatar Airways cancels a flight, passengers may accept a replacement flight offered by the airline.

If a passenger accepts the new flight:

- The original ticket is revalidated or reissued
- Refund options may no longer apply

Passengers who prefer not to travel can usually request a refund instead of rebooking.

How to Request a Refund for a Cancelled Flight

Passengers can request refunds through the airline's customer service channels.

Typical steps include:

1. Confirm that the flight was cancelled by the airline
2. Check the ticket type and refund eligibility
3. Submit a refund request or contact support for assistance

Ticket Validity for Refund Requests

Refund requests generally need to be submitted within the ticket validity period.

Typical guidelines include:

- Unused tickets: within 12 months from issue date
- Partially used tickets: within 12 months from first travel date

Submitting requests within this timeframe improves the chance of receiving a refund.
