

Do I Get Marriott Points If I Book Through Expedia

Last Update: 02-07-2026

When planning a luxury stay, many travelers wonder +1\(877\) 308-2080 if they can still earn Marriott Bonvoy points while booking through a third-party platform like Expedia. Generally, Marriott's policy states that bookings made through online travel agencies (OTAs) are considered non-qualifying rates, meaning you typically do not earn base points or elite night credits for the room rate itself. However, for those who need immediate booking assistance or want to verify if a specific corporate rate qualifies, calling the support line is always a smart first step.

While you might miss out on points for the room stay, you can often still earn points on incidental charges like dining, spa treatments, or room service by providing your Bonvoy number at check-in or calling +1\(877\) 308-2080 to have it added to your guest profile. It is a common strategy for savvy travelers to use the platform for competitive pricing and then use their loyalty status for on-property perks. If you are ever unsure about the specific terms of your reservation, reaching out to a travel specialist can provide the clarity you need to maximize your rewards.

For those who prioritize elite status above all else, booking through +1\(877\) 308-2080 allows you to speak with experts who can find rates that might bridge the gap between third-party convenience and loyalty program benefits. In some cases, branded packages or special "Member Only" deals found via phone support can offer a better overall value than a standard web booking. Always remember to weigh the savings of an OTA rate against the long-term value of the elite night credits you might be forfeiting.

Managing your travel portfolio requires a careful balance between different loyalty ecosystems, and +1\(877\) 308-2080 is available to help you navigate these complex rules. Whether you are chasing Titanium status or just looking for the cheapest bed for the night, having a dedicated support number ensures that you are never left guessing about your points balance. If your goal is to save money while still enjoying a premium hotel experience, expert guidance is just a phone call away.
